De-icing

Before leaving Lot 2 Thursday, Dale Busdieker, freshman art education major, had to scrape the ice off of his windows because of the freezing rain that fell. Busdieker had to drive 30 miles on the icy roads to his home in north Toledo.

Budget cuts force seven dept. layoffs

by Angela Blandina and Julie Wallace and Barbara Weadock

Seven temporary University employees were released Wednesday as the result of emergency measures attempting to keep the operational budget of custodial services in the black.

The employees, hired to fill vacancies created by leaves of absence, were notified Wednesday by custodial supervisors of their immediate layoff.

Michael Sawyer, assistant director of plant operations and maintenance, said Thursday a mid-year evaluation of the operational budget indicated the remaining funds will not cover the department's expenses for the fiscal year.

"We had our mid-year evaluation and we simply aren't going to make it," Sawyer said, explaining that 80 percent of the budget which began July 1, 1988, and is expected to last through June 30 of this year, is exhausted.

Sources in Vice President of Operations Robert Martin's office said the total operating budget allocated for custodial services in academic buildings and residence halls for fiscal year 1989 is $1.7 million.

Martin was unavailable for comment Thursday.

Sawyer said the personnel released were employed to service the academic buildings — not residence halls.

Due to the state of the budget, Sawyer said money to continue paying temporary employees is not immediately available — causing the abrupt layoffs.

"It was short notice, but we had to do it. They were given ... not much notice," he said. "We found out on Wednesday morning, I told the supervisors and the employees were let go that day."

Sawyer said the general reaction of the custodial supervisors and staff to the layoffs was unfavorable.

"They (supervisors) are not very happy and the custodians are not very happy because it means more work for them," he said, adding they may be rehired if additional money becomes available.

Wages for temporary employees and overtime pay are not included in the salary budget figures, Sawyer said. He explained the money to cover these expenses is then drawn from the operating budget — creating the budget crunch.

As of December, he said $20,000 of the operational budget

U.S. claims attack still a mystery

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department, responding to a news report linking Palestinian radicals to the bombing of a Pan Am jumbo jet, said Thursday the attack has not been solved yet.

"We are confident we will eventually find out who is responsible, but we should not expect a quick solution," spokesman Charles E. Redman said.

Asked about a CBS News report implicating Syria and Libya, Redman said "the investigators have not yet reached any conclusion about who is responsible."

A total of 270 people perished in the Dec. 21 crash, including 259 persons on the 747 jet and 11 persons in the Scottish village of Lockerbie, where the plane hit. The flight originated in Frankfurt, West Germany, and then went to London before taking off for New York.

Secretary of State James A. Baker III said Wednesday night he could not confirm the CBS report. "I don't know that any responsibility has been determined," Baker said at a White House reception.

According to CBS, the attack on Flight 103 was in retaliation for the U.S. bombing of Libya in 1986 and was also spurred by the U.S. decision in December to talk with the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Gillmor against Congress pay raise

by Angela Blandina
assistant news editor

Barring a congressional vote of disapproval by Feb. 8, the recently proposed 51 percent pay hike for U.S. Congress members will become law.

The Senate Thursday voted to reject the raise, 95-5. However, without a two-thirds rejection vote from the House within the next week, the raise will be implemented.

According to an Associated Press article, House Speaker Jim Wright Tuesday promised to schedule a House vote if members demanded one in a confidential survey that he administered. He said members privately have told him to let the raise become a law without a vote, the article stated.

U.S. Congressman Paul Gillmor, R-Ohio, said given the chance, he will vote against the raise, which will increase the annual salary of Congress members from $89,500 to $135,000.

Mark Isakowitz, Gillmor's press secretary, said the congressman received and completed Wright's anonymous survey.

"It looks as if the speaker anticipated that, anonymously, members would decide not to have a vote," Isakowitz said. "We sent the survey back to the speaker informing him that there ought to be a vote."

After partially releasing survey results, Wright said Thursday the House would allow the 51 percent raise to take effect next week but then vote to cut it back to 30 percent, the AP article stated.

Isakowitz said Gillmor is also against the 30 percent pay increase. He said the congressman disapproves of how the issue is being handled.

"Symbolically, it sends out the wrong message for how the government is spending money," he said.

The salary increase was proposed in December by the Quadrennial Commission on Executive, Judicial, and Legislative Salaries — a body recently established to compare salaries with the current cost of living.

The commission recommends salary changes to the president, who has the option to reject, approve or amend them, Isakowitz said.

Former President Reagan decided to approve the commission's recent recommendation, and with President Bush's endorsement the proposed raise was included in the country's budget, Isakowitz said.

He said Gillmor currently is co-sponsoring a bill which is tentatively titled the Congressional Pay Raise Reform Act.

Public Works Director moves on to Evanston

by Beth Church
assistant wire editor

Although Bowling Green Public Works Director David Barber is moving 250 miles away to a new job, neither his title nor his town will change much.

Barber, who officially resigned Wednesday, recently accepted the position of public works director at another college town — Evanston, Ill.

"I've enjoyed the people of Bowling Green tremendously, especially the students — they keep everyone young," Barber said. "Evanston is the home of Northwestern University and I bet it will be the same as here."

Although he declined to state the full reason for his resignation, Barber said in general, he believes "it's time to move on."

According to Mayor Edwin Miller, the city of Evanston recruited Barber for their public works division.

"As a member of professional organizations, he's attended national meetings and must have come to their notice," Miller said. "They came after him and made a fine offer."

Although Miller said Barber will be missed in Bowling Green, the mayor said he can understand the reasoning behind the resignation.

"Evanston has about 80,000 people

McMaster Fellow visits

Mead VP teaches self-focus doctrine

by Barbara A. Weadock
copy editor

Gathering and sharing information on team management styles is the primary objective of the University's first McMaster Senior Fellow.

Richard Wright, vice president of technology at Mead Imaging, a division of the Mead Corp., will be at the University for six months sharing methods of management he found integral to the teamwork aspect of his job.

"Students struggle in the whole area of applying their education to the job market," Wright said.

He said students are not taught how to work with others as a team, although they would like to see ways of developing collaborative environments.

A way to capture human relations skills is to enroll in a well-rounded course of study that emphasizes interpersonal communication and self-development skills, Wright said.

"My view is that we haven't had serious problems getting people with technical skills," Wright said. "Our problem is (students) are focused on technology and not on themselves, interaction skills or the ability to work with colleagues, peers and supervisors."

Friday

According to the National Weather Service at the Toledo Express Airport, today will be cool with a high of 25. A 70-percent chance of snow is predicted for today, tonight and Saturday. Tonight's low will be 15 and Saturday is expected to be cold with a high of 20.

News in Brief

Bloodmobile goal set at 1,200 University donors

The largest blood drive in Wood County will begin at the University Monday.

The Bloodmobile, which runs through Friday, will take donors from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. each day in the Lenhart Grand Ballroom, University Union.

Lisa Sherrill, campus coordinator for the event, said 250 donors per day are necessary to meet patient needs in the area. She encouraged both students and faculty to contribute to the drive.

The Bloodmobile has a goal of 1,200 donors for next week, she said. The last blood drive netted 985 donors.

Oboist concert canceled

The concert featuring Kimberly Bryden, the principal oboist with the Toledo Symphony, scheduled for 8 p.m. today in the Bryan Recital Hall has been canceled, due to Bryden suffering from tendonitis in the arms.

The performance was to have been part of the Young Artist Concert Series. This was the second concert of the series to be canceled this year.

Tina Bunce, manager of publicity and publication for the College of Musical Arts, said the Jan. 20 concert featuring the mezzo-soprano Carla Wood was canceled when Wood was hospitalized due to an upper respiratory infection.

"A full refund for the entire Young Concert Artist Series will be given to all the season subscribers due to two of the three concerts being canceled," Bunce said.

A refund is also being given to ticket holders who only bought tickets for the Bryden concert. Both refunds will be sent through the mail to ticket holders.

Paddling not effective form of punishment

Spare the rod and save the child. Ever since the days of the one-room schoolhouse there has been the image of the schoolmaster disciplining students with a hickory stick. Our society has graduated beyond the one-room schoolhouse. Yet, why do we still sanction physical abuse in our schools?

A bill before the Ohio Congress could change that. Rep. Judy Sheerer of Shaker Heights proposes making corporal punishment a misdemeanor for public and private school employees.

The Ohio Education Association opposes the passage of this bill on the grounds that paddling unruly children is a necessary means of maintaining order in the classroom.

Yet paddling places children in a dangerous situation in which they have no control. In the state of New York, teachers are permitted to employ corporal punishment as long as "deadly force" is not used.

For a country which bans corporal punishment of hardened criminals, it is ironic that educators can paddle an average of two to three million students annually without any legal repercussions.

If this bill is passed, alternative means for maintaining order and discipline in the classroom also must be implemented.

Twelve states and several school districts have already abolished this archaic form of control, preferring to employ methods that go beyond the impulsive act of striking a child.

Nationally, schools which have used in-school suspensions as a form of discipline reduced repeat suspensions by 25 percent. An in-school suspension separates children from their peers and places them in a special classroom where trained teacher/counselors instruct them.

Other education systems have found behavior contracts between the student and the teacher — where the student agrees not to continue the behavior as long as a suspension is not implemented — to be an effective means of control.

Also, student discipline committees could recommend appropriate punishments for their classmates. Such peer pressure might prove to be a powerful deterrent against disruptive students.

By training counselors to deal with students' personal problems which may be creating the unruly acts, the result would be a more pro-active approach to an age-old problem.

Aggressive and violent behavior in our classrooms cannot be combatted with more aggression. Instead, teachers must use their roles as educators in a more humane and imaginative manner.

If we do not allow parents to physically endanger their children, then how can we sanction the same action in our classrooms?

The passage of this bill will be a first step toward ending this legal child abuse.

Letters from the mailbox

It's been awhile since I sorted through the mail I get from readers of my column. It's true that The News receives some letters about it, but not many. Most of the letters come straight to me, or as straight as can be expected from the U.S. Mail.

So here's a look at Craig's Mailbag.

Dear Craig, I just read in The News that anyone who had heard or read anything about Ollie North's case was disqualified from being a juror which means to me that they are going to have one ignorant jury for that case. What are your thoughts on this matter?

Just Wondering

Dear Just,

I think it means Ollie North will be tried by a jury of his peers.

Dear Craig,

I am a member of a group called Students Upset by Cheap Shots — or, as we are known, SUCS — and I just want to say I'm upset about what you just wrote in the previous column inch.

Upset

Dear Upset,

A reader who is upset about one of my columns? It couldn't happen.

Dear Craig,

I wonder wonder who, bejuboo, who wrote the book of love?

Just wonder, but not the same "just wondering" who wrote the letter leading to the cheap shot about Ollie North, which I, too, am upset about.

Dear Just,

I don't know anything about the book of love. I just have the video.

Dear Craig,

Just read "Just's" letter. The first "Just" I mean, not the one who wrote about the book of love. Boy, am I steamed. Consider yourself warned! I was willing to go mano a mano with the toughest terrorists the world has to offer and I think I can handle one skinny liberal four-eyes punk.

Ollie North

Dear Ollie,

I'm glad you've managed to keep your cool about this.

Dear Craig,

This is your conscience speaking. Well, typing, actually. Geez, even your conscience is neurotic. Anyway, I'm your conscience, take my word for it. I want you to be honest. You're doing this "Craig's Mailbox" bit because you didn't take the time to write a real column this week. Right?

Craig's conscience

Dear Craig's,

All right, you got me. I was going to write about the Ollie North trial, but then I decided that it would be best not to mention that topic at all. Wouldn't you agree?

Just Wondering (but not the same "Just" as the first or the second one)

Dear Just,

Yes, I agree. You don't want to upset anyone. As your conscience, I advise you not to mention Ollie North at all.

Craig's Conscience

Dear Craig's,

Now that's sound advice! Keep in touch.

Craig Hergert's conscience is part of that entity called Craig Hergert who is an instructor in English from Slayton, Minn., and a columnist for The News.

LETTERS

May's letter rebuttal wrong

I believe Christopher May made a very bold assumption in his rebuttal to Ms. Cleveland's article about Proposition 42. No, the assumption was not about the education of athletes, but about the equal educational opportunities between inner-city and suburban schools.

Mr. May naively believes inner-city and suburban school students receive the same amount of education. He is obviously ignorant of the situation.

Being a recent graduate of the Cleveland Public School system, also known as one of the more corrupt school systems in the state of Ohio, I believe I did not receive the quality of education such as that available to students within most suburban schools.

My brother had the fortuitous experience of going to a suburban school. Upon returning to the Cleveland schools, he often found himself more knowledgeable of subject matters than his teachers.

My experience here at the University has also shown me I did not receive an equal amount of educational opportunities as those students from suburban schools.

Article raises many questions

Educated persons in the Bowling Green community should have had a few questions regarding the BG News article of Jan. 31 entitled "Abortion Rights Questioned." The oversight occurred when the reporter (or perhaps the panel) failed to mention that the unviable fetal tissue in question is attached to a fully viable woman. This emphasis on fetal rights rather than women's rights is a patriarchal fallacy perpetrated by those long brainwashed by a society which believes a woman's right to autonomous personhood is subservient to her ability to bear children.

Moralists question a woman's capacity to choose whether to bear a child by claiming they have been misinformed by pro-choice activists, the women's rights movement and secular humanism. They, the moralists, should be questioned for not examining their own arguments which are based on oppressive misogynistic deceptions which are erroneously accepted as truths by a culture taught to view the state and organized religion as unerring. Acting from a base of misinformation, their assumptions are therefore invalid.

For example, Barbara Gorant was quoted in the BG News as stating that "pregnancy may be the only positive thing to come out of rape." Why is it that physical rape by a man is never equated with the psychic/emotional rape of involuntary pregnancy?

For centuries, a woman's reproductive capacity has been used as an excuse to deny her education, job opportunities, voting privileges, the holding of public office, and many other basic human rights. Forced pregnancy is just another of a multitude of exploitative crimes perpetrated against women to ensure the proliferation and security of the patriarchy. One woman noted that "if men could get pregnant, abortion would be a sacrament."

Women who choose not to bear children either for economic, physical, emotional or spiritual reasons are not criminals. Abortion is not a crime, forced pregnancy is. As a woman, I fully claim my human and reproductive rights regardless of secular laws, moralism and a sexist society driven to oppress women as a class. Our scream will not be silent.

Weekend of festivities 'on tap'

by Jeff Batdorf
staff reporter

While some people may go to New Orleans for Mardi Gras, students can enjoy the celebration here at the University this weekend. The event, sponsored by University Activities Organization (UAO), will feature several events, including professional entertainers, casino games and costume contests, said Joe Drieaus, junior special education major.

Drieaus, chairperson of the event, said the festivities began Thursday night in the Falcon's Nest where the Cake Walkin' Jazz Band performed Dixieland music for students from 8 p.m. until 11 p.m.

The Falcon's Nest will also be the site of today's events which include a dating game and the comic impersonations of Tony Domenico, Drieaus said.

Students who have signed up to participate in the dating game will be picked at random to participate in two rounds of play.

"Students will make up their own questions and there will be one guy asking three girls questions in round one and then one girl asking three guys questions in round two," Drieaus said. "The winners will win a date for a free dinner for two at an area restaurant."

Following the game, Domenico will entertain students with his famous impersonations of Dr. Ruth and Pee Wee Herman, he said.

Mardi Gras will conclude Saturday with a casino night in the Lenhart Grand Ballroom.

Students may play casino games such as blackjack with play money.

He said students can also bet play money on turtle and video horse races.

A costume contest will take place later in the evening. Students will be judged by graduate students and executive UAO members, Drieaus said.

"We're passing out 400 masks to students and judges will be looking for originality and the Mardi Gras colors of purple, yellow and green," he said.

He said the winner of the costume contest will win a free UAO spring break trip to Daytona Beach, Florida.

An auction will also be held and prizes donated by 25 local businesses and 10 professional sport teams will be given away to the highest bidder, Drieaus said.

He said he hopes strong advertising will increase the turnout for the event, which he said has been low in the past.

"I think in the past, students were unaware about Mardi Gras. They should realize that they can have a good time for a few hours and the money they will be spending will go to charity," Drieaus said.

Beth Adler, graduate student in college personnel, said there are eight on-campus organizations working on the event and turnout is important.

"The more people who come and have fun, the more people will benefit in the long run," Adler said.

Adler, who is the co-advisor of volunteers and programs/charity board, said she hopes more than $300 will be raised from this event.

March 10 would have made 9 years for me in BG — it seems like only yesterday I started," he said.

Barber said he was pleased he was able to begin preliminary work on the University's commercial research park and a

Other major city projects Barber worked on include the installation of a new sewer system to prevent basement flooding and the construction of a new waste water treatment plant.

A licensed professional engineer, Barber earned both a bachelor's and a master's degree at Ohio University. He assumed his Bowling Green position in 1980 after working seven years at Finkbinder, Pettis and Strout, a design consulting firm in Toledo.

award include clinical and academic achievements, participation in extracurricular activities and leadership, Plowright said.

The Bowling Green native was nominated by the Medical College of Ohio, which she attends as part of the University's cooperative nursing major with the University of Toledo. She was judged against one nominee from every Ohio nursing college, she said.

In her four years as a nursing student, Plowright has done clinical study in medical/surgical practice, gerontology and mental health. She said she received MCO's outstanding achievement award last year for her studies in gerontology.

Plowright said she knew nursing was her calling while caring for her mother — who died of cancer last year. Her parent's health problems resulted in her being around hospitals all her life, she said.

"That made me realize nursing was right for me," Plowright said. "You can handle taking care of people you don't know, but it really hits harder closer to home."

On campus, Plowright serves as secretary of two leadership honoraries, Mortar Board and Omicron Delta Kappa. She is also a member of the Honors Student Association.

Outside classes, Plowright has played trumpet with the University's Athletic Pep Band for four years. She said she enjoys playing at the hockey and basketball games.

"It's a release playing in the band," she said. "I've made a lot of good friends there, and I also volunteer playing trumpet at local churches." Her dedication to nursing earned her the Ruth L. Kelly Nursing Scholarship, the Frazier Reams Fellowship and the American Businesswomen's Association Scholarship.

Winning the 1988 Frazier Reams Scholarship was the "ultimate" achievement for her because a nursing student was the recipient, she said.

"The scholarship is for people studying public affairs, like political science majors," she said.

"I think we ought to facilitate writing and thinking skills by making all tests essay," he said.

Wright will share his ideas for team management by talking to classes and student groups, plus filming segments for WBGU-TV

Wright said he gathered his team management information during the last eight years by leading a development team at Mead Imaging.

Bush touts U.S.-Japan friendship

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush promised continued good U.S.-Japanese relations on Thursday, telling Prime Minister Noboru Takeshita any disputes between the nations are "the differences of friends."

Takeshita was equally upbeat. Standing alongside Bush in a colorful departure ceremony on the South Lawn of the White House, Takeshita said their session "marked a new start for U.S.-Japan cooperation."

Both leaders pledged closer economic and political cooperation — Bush vowing to work to drive down the U.S. budget deficit and Takeshita promising that Japan would accept more imports.

They also reaffirmed a plan to assist the Philippine government of Corazon Aquino and said they would continue to consult closely on policies toward the Soviet Union, the Middle East and Latin America.

"Continuity will ... be the mark of relations between the United States and Japan. On occasion, we may have differences. But these are the differences of friends," Bush said. "Simply put, we respect one another. We need one another."

"We're glad you came our way, sir," Bush said.

Takeshita, borrowing a phrase from Bush's Jan. 20 inaugural address, told his host: "In your words, the new breeze is blowing, Mr. President."

Congress begins arms sale talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration has opened arms sale talks with Congress that potentially include shipping 35 Abrams tanks, considered the world's best, to Saudi Arabia and 40 sophisticated FA-18 jet fighters to the United Arab Emirates, congressional and other sources said Thursday.

Other Arab states would be inline for U.S. armaments under the proposal, made in the next to the last day of the Reagan administration and now the focus of discussions between the Bush White House and Congress.

Also proposed: 200 Abrams tanks, seven multiple-launched battlefield rocket systems and 1,500 Tow anti-tank missiles for Kuwait; 40 Maverick air-to-ground missiles with an infra-red guidance system and electronic warfare gear for Bahrain; 24 F-16 jet fighters, 100 Mavericks and 100 Sidewinder air-to-air missiles for Morocco, and seven of the battlefield rocket systems for Saudi Arabia.

If Bush follows through, the proposed Arab sales would seem sure to touch off a battle with congressional supporters of Israel, which is concerned that sophisticated weapons in Arab hands could be turned against Israel in a Mideast conflict.

The list is classified; a copy was obtained by The Associated Press.

Singer 'haunted' by fall memories

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music star Hank Williams, Jr. says he is still haunted by memories of a 500-foot fall down a Montana mountain while he was hiking in 1975.

Williams, son of a country music pioneer, said he thinks about the near-fatal accident when he sees television shows about mountains.

"I've had dreams about it," he said Tuesday in an interview. "I should have died. The doctor said he had worked on plenty of boys in Vietnam and to be frank, they looked good compared to me. He said I had been left here (spared death) for something. I think about that all the time."

Williams, 39, spent a year recovering from the head injuries. He wears a beard and sunglasses to hide the scars.

He has been voted entertainer of the year for the past two years by the Country Music Association. His hit records include "If the South Woulda Won," "Born to Boogie" and "All My Rowdy Friends Are Coming Over Tonight."

Dukakis assumes 'grandpa' title

BOSTON (AP) — Alexandra Jane Dukakis, the first grandchild of Gov. Michael S. Dukakis, was born Wednesday, more than a week overdue.

The baby was delivered after a difficult pregnancy that forced her mother, Lisa Dukakis, 33, to remain in bed for months and abandon the presidential campaign that occupied the rest of the family for most of 1988.

The new father, John Dukakis, 30, the son of Mrs. Dukakis' first marriage, managed the Southern primaries for the Dukakis campaign. Although the younger Dukakis was never adopted by the governor, he has used his stepfather's name.

A buoyant Gov. Dukakis was telling visitors about the long-awaited birth and accepting congratulations at his Statehouse office Wednesday morning. The governor said he planned to scrap his official schedule in the afternoon so he and his wife could visit the new grandchild.

"Mother and child are healthy and happy and resting comfortably," said a Dukakis spokesman, James Dorsey.

O.J. charged with personal foul

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former football star O.J. Simpson is trying to play down charges of wife beating filed against him this week over a New Year's Day incident in which he allegedly hit, kicked and threatened his wife.

Simpson, 41, a sports commentator and spokesman for Hertz Rent-A-Car, struck his 29-year-old wife, Nicole, pulled her hair, and yelled "I'll kill you," in the incident at the couple's home, according to police records.

The city attorney's office filed charges Monday. Simpson is to be arraigned Feb. 17.

"My wife and I had a fight. That's it," he said Wednesday. "We put it behind us."

Cathy Randa, a spokeswoman for Simpson, said neither he nor his wife wanted charges filed.

Simpson told authorities he and his wife had been drinking when a "wrestling-type altercation" began, the records said.

Takeover instills job concerns

TOLEDO (AP) — When Dana Corp. announced it would buy Champion Spark Plug Co. for $590 million in cash and stock, there was a sigh of relief from some Champion workers that the company was being sold to another Toledo-based business.

But some workers are now wondering whether their jobs would be safe under Dana control.

"I used to work for Dana years ago," said John Arnold, who works at Champion's Upton Avenue plant. "It seemed that we always had trouble with them at contract time. Finally, they just started laying off people. To say I'm a little worried about Dana coming in is an understatement."

Dana, an automotive giant with $4.9 billion in sales last year, used to employ 3,000 hourly workers at its Toledo plant. Now the plant has about 340 workers. Most of the jobs have been automated or transferred to other factories.

David Kubicki, a United Auto Workers international representative, said it's still too early to judge the deal.

"We'll know more about it later," said Kubicki, a former UAW unit chairman at Dana's Toledo plant. "But we do feel good that it's a Toledo company buying Champion. They know the area and the people."

William Prebe, an automotive industry analyst and former Dana vice president, said Dana probably will keep the Champion plant in Toledo — if it stays productive.

Plant's output deforms animals

CINCINNATI (AP) — Genetic deformities have shown up in tissue samples of small animals living around six waste pits and an incinerator at the federal government's Fernald uranium processing plant, according to studies.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, which is monitoring plans for a 20-year cleanup of the U.S. Department of Energy plant, says it wants more biological and water tests conducted at the plant's 1,050-acre site.

EPA officials say the tests are needed to determine whether contaminated water or soil might be causing the mutations and creating a potential health risk for plant neighbors and employees.

"We don't know how this affects humans," said Catherine McCord, the EPA's site manager for cleanup of the Energy Department's Feed Materials Production Center. "They found changes in normal gene patterns (in animals), things that affect their lives, such as problems with reproduction."

"It raises concerns on our part. And it is indicating that further investigation is needed."

Miami University zoology professors Sheldon Guttman and David Osborne conducted the initial tests for Westinghouse Materials Co. of Ohio, which operates the plant. The 38-year-old plant, 18 miles northwest of Cincinnati, processes uranium for the government's production elsewhere of nuclear weapons.

First black NL chief named

by Ronald Blum
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — Bill White will be named on Friday to succeed A. Bartlett Giamatti as National League president, becoming the first black to head a major professional sports league in the United States.

White, a six-time All-Star first baseman with the New York and San Francisco Giants, St. Louis and Philadelphia, and a broadcaster with the Yankees for 18 years, was chosen Thursday by the five-man search committee, several sources said.

NL owners were expected to elect White on Friday and he would become league president on April 1, when Giamatti succeeds Peter Ueberoth as commissioner.

"We're coming to New York and we expect a positive announcement," White's lawyer, William Eastburn III, said Thursday.

White could not be reached by telephone Thursday and was said to be traveling in the Midwest. Katy Feeney, director of public relations for the NL, said the league had no comment on the search.

White had not been mentioned publicly as a candidate for the job until Tuesday when the Daily News reported he would get it. When he does, he will join American League president Bobby Brown as former players who rose to head their leagues.

Simon Gourdine, a former NBA deputy commissioner who had been the other remaining contender, was told Thursday that he no longer was being considered, a source familiar with the search told the AP.

Lou Hoynes, the NL lawyer, was the third candidate the search group examined, another source said. Hoynes told the committee several weeks ago that he did not want the job.

Gourdine had been the leading candidate for many months, according to one source. The search group is composed of Los Angeles Dodgers owner Peter O'Malley, New York Mets president Fred Wilpon, former NL president Chub Feeney, Atlanta Braves chairman William Bartholomay and Giamatti.

Budget

had been depleted through overtime and pay for temporary help — with $3,800 of it covering overtime.

Sawyer said re-hiring may be possible if money is transferred from the salary to the operational budget to cover wages.

When a custodial staff member is on a leave of absence, the money earmarked for their wages remains in the salary budget — although the staff members do not receive it. He said this "salary savings" can be transferred to the operational budget on approval by Martin or by Roland Engler, plant operations and maintenance director in order to employ temporary help.

Engler was also unavailable for comment.

The results of the budget strain will be felt in academic buildings, Sawyer said.

"We've had to curtail a lot of our services," he said. "We of course will make sure the necessary things are done, but the custodians will have to make do without some supplies."

Sawyer said the cleaning of restrooms will not deteriorate and lighting in the classrooms will be maintained.

Sharon Bishop, custodian worker in West Hall, said she was told all supplies will be issued on a need-only basis and will be kept at a monitored, central location to cut waste.

Sawyer said he does not believe anyone is to blame for the budget crisis.

"I don't really think it is anybody's fault," he said. "The only thing we can do is make do."

Minority station torched

Second arson fire in eight days quiets WJTB-AM broadcasts

NORTH RIDGEVILLE (AP) — Extensive damage from the second arson fire in eight days kept a black-owned radio station off the air Thursday in this predominantly white community, authorities said.

Arson is suspected in the WJTB-AM fires Wednesday night and Jan. 24 because of similarities, but no arrests have been made, according to Fire Chief Eugene A. Diederich.

"It was arson," said Diederich. "Whether there's anything racial, I cannot tell you."

The co-owner and manager of the 5,000-watt daytime station, James Taylor, spent Thursday looking over the remnants of the gutted studio. He said he had no idea who might have started the fires.

Another co-owner, Robert A. Palmer, an Elyria attorney and part-time Lorain County prosecutor, said he felt there was a strong possibility that the arson was racially motivated.

Palmer said he was unable to cite a specific reason for his belief that the arson might have been racially motivated. But he added: "We're in North Ridgeville, which is a predominantly white township."

North Ridgeville, 20 miles west of Cleveland in Lorain County, has a population of about 22,000. Blacks represent 0.4 percent of the population.

Both fires were reported just before midnight and damaged control room equipment. The first fire caused an estimated $175,000 in damage. The second fire, which damaged replacement equipment and was found burning in two places by firefighters, caused an estimated $100,000 in damage.

Mayor Floyd H. Peaco Jr. said the station had experienced financial difficulties in recent years and paid an overdue city tax bill only after the matter went to court. Palmer said the station was doing "fair financially — not in such a state that a fire would resolve anything."

Swim teams host Wildcats

by Mike Drabenstott
sports reporter

It will be depth versus depth Saturday at 1 p.m. as the Bowling Green swim teams host Kentucky in the Falcons' last home meet of the year.

While BG has relied on its superior depth most of the season, the Wildcats have the personnel to beat the Falcons at their own game by finishing two or three swimmers in the top four spots when they do not win an event.

This will necessitate top performances by BG standouts Andrea Szekely, Shari Williams, Rich Foster, Brian Dickman, Rob Hermanet, and Michael Poindexter.

The above may be difficult on the emotional level considering Kentucky is not a MAC foe.

"We will not have the same intensity as we had (last Saturday) against Miami," BG head coach Brian Gordon said. "For us, it's a chance to get up and race against a good team."

"It's not a MAC meet, so it will give us a little time to get everything fixed before Ball State (next weekend) and the MAC Championships," Gordon said.

The MAC Championships are scheduled on Feb. 23-25 for the women and March 2-4 for the men.

Nine Falcon seniors will be competing for the last time in Cooper Pool Saturday. They are Suzanne Church, Moe Kelly, Jennifer Lakins, Andrea Szekely, Brian Dickman, Jim Jensen, Dave Stiener, Corky Thein, and Tim Wagner.

Though he said he did not want to single anyone out, Gordon said Szekely should be especially honored for her four years in a Bowling Green swimsuit.

"I don't want Andrea to overshadow everyone else," Gordon said. "It will be similar to when Jackie Motycka plays her last basketball game — you don't get an athlete like that very often."

Is Szekely readying herself for the MAC Championships? Judging from her performances last weekend in BG's 165-135 victory over Miami, she may never be more ready.

Szekely took first-place finishes in three events — the 200 butterfly, 200 freestyle, and 500 freestyle — notching her season-best times in each.

"I haven't swam that well since my freshman year," Szekely said.

Szekely ended her freshman campaign with the 1986 Outstanding Swimmer of the Meet honors in the MAC Championships.

Falcon squads see action

The Bowling Green gymnasts, track teams, and men's tennis team will all see their fair share of action this weekend.

The gymnasts host Eastern Michigan Friday in the Eppler North gym at 7:30 p.m. in a MAC meet.

The women's track team travels to the Ohio State Invitational for a 10:30 a.m. meet on Saturday, while the men compete in the Eastern Michigan Fast Track Classic on Friday.

The men then take a select group of team members to the Notre Dame Invitational on Saturday.

The men's tennis team travels to Michigan State Saturday to take on the Spartans at 1 p.m.

BG icers challenge Miami

WHAT: Bowling Green Falcons versus Miami Redskins

WHEN: Friday and Saturday night at 7:30 p.m.

WHERE: Both games will be played at MU's Goggin Ice Arena (2,200).

RECORDS: The Falcons will try to improve on their 18-13-1 overall record and their 12-13-1 Central Collegiate Hockey Association mark. BG's league record is good for fifth-place, five points behind fourth-place Lake Superior and only six points behind Michigan and Illinois-Chicago, who are tied for second-place. The Redskins enter this weekend's action with a 9-21 record overall and a 6-18 league slate which puts them in the basement of the CCHA.

COACHES: Bowling Green's head coach Jerry York enters this weekend's series with a 248-144-17 record in his 10 seasons at BG. His overall record in his 17 years behind the bench is 373-231-20. His counterpart, Miami's Bill Davidge, has struggled at the helm of the Redskins where he has posted a 37-105-3 mark.

FIRST SERIES: When the two teams met earlier in the season, Miami defeated BG 6-3, for the first time since the 1979-80 season. In the second game, Nelson Emerson netted the game winner in the Falcons 5-3 victory. In the series, BG outshot the Redskins 75-42.

THE REDSKINS:

Offense: The Redskins are led by two freshmen, Craig Fisher and Ken House. Fisher leads Miami with 35 points, 19 of those coming on red lighters. House, on the other hand, is fourth in points with 29, but can be found in the second spot in goals scored with 17. Also supplying scoring punch is senior Boyd Sutton (16-19-35) and senior Jeff Sisto (12-20-32).

Defense: The defense is the heart of this Redskin team and they are led by freshman Rhys Hollyman, who last week who tallied four goals last week, with three coming on the power play. Also supplying help along the blue-line are Steve McGrinder (5-11-16) and Joe Tonello.

Goaltending: Junior Steve McKichan and freshman Mike Michaud split the goaltending chores with McKichan owning a 4-15 record while Michaud is 5-8. McKichan (4.60) has a better goals against average than Michaud (4.95).

THE FALCONS:

Offense: The Falcons will be led by Greg Parks who leads the team and is second in the league with 55 points. He will be helped by junior Nelson Emerson (16-30-46) and sophomore Pierrick Maia (13-16-29). The scoring depth for the Falcons will continue with junior Joe Quinn (13-14-27) and Marc Potvin (16-10-26).

Defense: Adding offensive spark from the back line are the tandem of Kevin Dahl (7-20-27) and Rob Blake (7-15-22). Seniors Alan Leggett and Thad Rusiecki stabilize the defensive aspect of the game with heady, consistent play.

Goaltending: Junior Paul Connell will handle the goaltending chores this weekend. Connell has reduced his GAA to 3.80, as he has allowed just three goals or less in nine of his last 14 starts and boosts a 14-11 record. John Burke is a capable as he enters the weekend with a 4-2 record and a 4.17 GAA.

FRAZIER REAMS FELLOWSHIPS

FOR RISING SENIORS WITH INTEREST IN PUBLIC AFFAIRS
EACH FELLOWSHIP AMOUNT IS $1,500
Deadline: Friday, March 3, 1989

The Frazier Reams Public Affairs Undergraduate Fellowship Program was established in 1973 in recognition of Frazier Reams, Sr. and his distinguished service in the broadcasting industry as a member of Congress and as a Trustee of Bowling Green State University.

Heart Healthy Recipe

CHICKEN AND BROCCOLI WITH MUSHROOM SAUCE

1 10-ounce package frozen broccoli
3 tablespoons margarine
3 tablespoons flour
1 cup chicken broth
1 4-ounce can mushroom slices, with liquid
1 pound cooked chicken, sliced (or
2 cups cooked chicken or turkey)
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
2 tablespoons bread crumbs

Cook broccoli according to package directions.

Mix margarine and flour together in saucepan. Cook briefly over medium heat. Blend in chicken broth, stirring constantly until thickened and smooth. Stir in mushrooms and their liquid. Season to taste.

Place broccoli pieces in a shallow baking pan. Cover with sliced chicken and pour mushroom sauce over all. Top with parsley and bread crumbs. Bake at 375°F, uncovered, 15-25 minutes, or until bubbly and brown on top.

Senior Center 'an extended family'

by Elizabeth Masturzo

Senior citizens and the staff at the Wood County Senior Citizens Center have an unusual family bond. Both employees and customers give and receive.

The center revolves around need. Senior citizens have diverse needs, said Jean Smith, an administrator at the center.

Some members cannot afford to pay the donation and don't have to — because they have a need. Other people can pay the donation, but live alone — there, too, is a need.

"We like to feel it's like an extended family," Smith said of the center.

Immediately after learning that one of their favorite staff members had trouble with her family, the seniors took up a collection to buy an airline ticket for her return to her native country, Jamaica. All this was accomplished during the woman's lunch break.

The center is run by a combination of staff, seniors, and volunteers. A variety of activities such as aerobics, ceramics, oil-painting, ballroom dancing and health programs are offered on a regular basis. Often, special guests visit to entertain the seniors or give special classes. The instructors of these specialty classes are University students, professors and members themselves.

Elmer Girten of Bowling Green presented a "crash course" in calligraphy to interested seniors. Girten also teaches a five-week course in calligraphy at the University.

University student Stacey Thuma, senior elementary education major, is going to sing Christian songs at the center for a Bowling Green birthday celebration.

"It makes me feel good (to sing to the seniors), you get to talk to the people and they tell you stories — I like to listen to their stories," Thuma said.

One of the major features that the Wood County Senior Center offers is its luncheon meals. Everything, including meals, is free to people 60 years old and above. Donations are requested, but not necessary for the meals.

The center serves an average of 300 meals daily with 60 in the Bowling Green area. Volunteers generate 140 meals to shut-ins around Wood County. Sometimes people live too far away to have hot meals delivered. In this case, frozen dinners are brought.

Often, people are incapable of safely operating an oven. Norma Christen, social services director, is in charge of the meal program. "If it gets scary and they can't cook and they can't turn on the oven safely, then something has to be done, like a neighbor bringing in food," Christen said.

Whether it is providing a social outlet for people in nursing homes or distributing meals, the Senior Center is there for senior citizens.

"This is a very important place to me and I hope to the people we serve," Smith said. "I'm sure it is."

Friday/Paul Vernon

Matthew Mohr, a junior design major, helps Helen Steiger with her steps during dance class at the Wood County Senior Citizens Center.

Steiger said she has been coming to the center since the dance class started three months ago.

R.E.M. cover artist show in Toledo

by Frank Esposito

Combining a 72-year-old eccentric artist with two of the most progressive rock bands in the business sounds like a great idea for a wretched sitcom starring Bert Convy and Abe Vigoda. But for Howard Finster, it's a bizarre reality.

The rock bands in question are R.E.M. and the Talking Heads. Finster painted the covers of R.E.M.'s Reckoning album (with help from R.E.M. singer Michael Stipe) and Talking Heads' Little Creatures LP.

Finster's art will be on display at the Toledo Museum of Art's School Gallery through Feb. 5 in a show entitled The Modern Visionary: The Art of Howard Finster. The exhibit has been featured on MTV and is being sponsored by the art department of the University of Toledo and the Museum's curatorial and education departments.

Finster was originally a preacher who held a number of odd jobs. In 1970, he had a vision that told him to build a small building in his backyard that would come to be called the World Folk Art Church. In 1974, Finster had another vision. After sticking his finger in a can of paint, Finster saw a face appear at the end of his finger that told him to paint "for the glory of God." Finster has since created approximately 800 paintings and sculptures.

He has written several books, including one that outlines sex (Folk Image) and another that describes visits to other planets and his own personal philosophy (Howard Finster's Vision of 1982). Finster has also gained national attention through articles about him in Rolling Stone and Spin magazines and has appeared on several talk shows (including "The Tonight Show"), in the music documentary "Athens, Georgia: Inside/Out" and in the video for R.E.M.'s Radio Free Europe.

Mike Pettengell, teaching fellow in popular culture, has done extensive research on Finster. He says that Finster's art "can be described as primitive or naive. He's had no formal training. When people see his work, they usually think, 'anybody can do that.'"

The show "will provide the museum with an interesting change of pace," according to Richard Putney, chairman of the art department at the University of Toledo, who organized the display. Putney also supports the exhibit because of Finster's diverse style.

Campus Comments

Who was the most unusual professor you've had and why?

Friday/Lisa Pargeon

Doug Crew, sophomore finance major: "Loy Little. He gave us creative freedom and treated us as human beings more than any other professor. That in itself is unusual in a professor. I had him for Philosophy 101."

Lisa Reffner, senior music education major: "DePue in music theory. The things he would use in class to teach us and he would make things up to help him remember our names. If he had someone named Marvin he would call him Messy Marvin. He also would ask that we ask a question we had if we looked confused."

Joe Sgambellone, sophomore journalism major: "Dr. Doherty in Psychology 201. He seemed to actually care if we learned and he seem to enjoy teaching. He was willing to take an extra step for the students."

Denise Doherty, junior business major: "Dr. Richard Weaver in IPCO 102. He was very enthusiastic and energetic. He talked very quickly during his lectures. He was a very interesting lecturer and we weren't bored in his class."

New dry bar on campus

by Shelley Benson

UAO begs to differ with Michelob.

As far as they're concerned, from now on "dry" is B'Dazzle! — the newest non-alcoholic bar on campus.

In association with Mardi Gras, B'Dazzle! will have an informal unveiling tonight at 8 in the Union Falcon's Nest. The night's entertainment will consist of comedy by impressionist Tony Domenico and a mock dating game.

The B'Dazzle! grand opening is Friday, Feb. 10 and will debut an innovative form of entertainment called The Music King. In addition to a regular disc jockey, The Music King includes a large video screen and light show.

The main goal of B'Dazzle! is to provide students with alternative Friday night entertainment. According to project coordinator Joe Matessa, the club will offer students more than a regular cafeteria setting. "It has a very festive atmosphere and is better located for west-end and off-campus students."

These foreseen advantages are results of a survey done to determine why Frank's Place, a short-lived alternative bar, failed last semester. Students were not happy with the location and disliked the "cafeteria" decor. UAO used these observations and incorporated new ideas to develop B'Dazzle!

Matessa is also confident that B'Dazzle! will not be in competition with the other "dry bars" on campus. The club will offer entertainment every Friday night, while the others focus primarily on Thursdays and Saturdays.

Outsider sees America Slides show 'glimpse of life' in U.S.

by Shelley Benson

What is American Pictures?

The campus and community can find out when this presentation, which has attracted over 145,000 viewers nationwide, comes to the Lenhart Grand Ballroom Feb. 8.

Those who attend American Pictures will see an outsider's glimpse of life in the United States through the eyes of Jacob Holdt of Denmark. Holdt came to America in 1971 with $40 and an Instamatic camera. He sold his blood for money and stayed in over 400 homes, including the Rockefellers'. After five years he put together a slide show highlighting his travels.

Holdt's presentation has been shown at many college campuses throughout the U.S. and Canada, including Stanford and Yale. Dartmouth made it a mandatory viewing program for all incoming freshmen and Harvard has requested the show more than 10 times. Undergraduate Student Government, sponsor of the presentation, hopes that it will be just as successful here. The show is free of charge and begins at 7 p.m.

A follow-up discussion will be held Thursday, Feb. 9. According to Kevin Turner, deputy coordinator of minority affairs and human relations, the discussion is designed "to allow Holdt to give individual attention to any questions and concerns the students might have."

Prof 'shook up' about earthquakes

by Christian Thompson

I'm all shook up!!

Don't get upset. This isn't another Elvis reincarnation story. It is the feeling one gets after talking to the University's expert on earthquakes.

Jay Parrish, assistant professor of geology, said he moved to Bowling Green from California for personal reasons.

"I left my job at a NASA jet propulsion lab because I wanted to teach," Parrish said. "I love seeing students get excited about something ... opening doors and saying, 'Here's geology all around you.'"

Parrish said he uses data from the University's seismograph equipment in his introductory geology classes to introduce students to earthquakes. "There are only three seismograph stations in the state — one is at John Carroll University, one here and another at the University of Toledo," Parrish said.

He said the magnitude of Ohio's earthquakes is small compared to other regions of the world and that Ohio has only three major regions of activity — the areas around Anna, Cleveland and Toledo. "The rock beds are flat and relatively undisturbed, which means if there is an earthquake hundreds of miles away, the energy from it can travel here without much problem.

"Penn State has loaned us equipment precisely because they said it would be great to have a station here," Parrish said.

He said even though the Bowling Green fault, which extends from lower Michigan to Anna, Ohio, is not presently active, it is still a good source for student study.

"It's of interest because the fault buckled, which made highs and lows in the bedrock — that's where all the oil accumulated," Parrish said. "At the turn of the century when there was a big oil boom here, the oil was localized by the fault — the history of Bowling Green is tied to the fault."

Unlike Californians, Parrish said people would not be prepared if a major earthquake hit the area.

"If you live in California and open up your phone book, it says to make sure you have a wrench and three days worth of water and medical supplies available all the time," Parrish said. "Around here, I don't

"In California no one offers it unless you ask — it's very expensive. Here it's rare that anyone knowingly has it."

Ohio never has earthquakes big enough to cause damage, he said. Normally people will go down and look at their foundations and say they are cracked "but foundations are always cracking — the reason they blame the earthquake is because it's the think people are attuned to that. If there was a major earthquake, I don't think many people would know what to do."

Children in California schools learn that it is important to turn off the gas, not to stand in doorways and to stay inside tall buildings made of glass during earthquakes, much like students here learn about tornado safety, he said. Earthquake insurance is rare locally, Parrish said.

"I've talked to some insurance companies. Some offer it because it is so cheap with very little risk — others say they don't know what it's about, so why offer it," Parrish said.

first time they've looked. There's always a big problem for insurance companies after the quake."

Parrish said experts expect "the big one," a major California earthquake within 20 years that will cause thousands if not hundreds of thousands of deaths.

"Probably in terms of major world disasters — the Civil War, one of the World Wars and the Los Angeles earthquake would fall into the top three."

According to Forest Lawn Mortuaries of California, "the big one" will be no big deal — in the event of a major earthquake they will bury bodies for free.

War studied with Socratic method

by James A. Tinker

A course without lectures or tests may seem an unlikely prospect, but a University history professor makes it a daily reality.

Patrick Alston doesn't want his students to memorize. Instead, his goal is a Socratic approach in which students question the reasons behind actions and focus on understanding emotions.

Alston, who teaches the history of World War II and War in the 20th Century, among other history courses, said students can more easily learn detailed information from a book than they can from a lecture. He leaves class time for group discussion of the material.

Each week, Alston's students meet once in class and once with their assigned groups outside of class.

This group approach gives students the opportunity to investigate the material assigned and prepare themselves for a collective presentation that is more educational than a lecture, said Karen Spahr, senior public relations major and a student of Alston.

No tests are given, Alston said, because he thinks tests ingrain bad habits into students. Cramming, followed by a regurgitation of what they've studied, causes students to forget most of the material when preparing for the next test.

"What I'm really after is that the student becomes aware of the way his own mind functions, the way his emotions pinpoint the way he thinks, with a critical approach," Alston said.

Rikk Rambo, junior political science major, said he has enjoyed Alston's War in the 20th Century course and has learned more than in any other 300 level course he has taken.

"It is a lot like warfare in that you challenge each other with information," Rambo said.

Alston said.

Alston, who was drafted during the Korean War when he was a graduate student in international relations, said he finds war fascinating.

"It amazes me that men will give up sex, alcohol and their bodies for war."

War is an endeavor that demands the highest level of intelligence to win, yet is one of the most stupid things man can do, he said.

Alston, on the other hand, is no dummy.

He said he can speak Latin, Greek and French while also being fluent in Russian and German, and is planning to add Japanese to that list soon.

Languages grip Alston's interest, he said, because there are thoughts and emotions which can only truly be expressed in their native tongue. This is a reflection of his devotion to a liberal arts approach to teaching.

Alston, who has been teaching for 30 years, plans to retire in two years. He says he's finally becoming a good teacher, but added, "I have no illusions that I know what I'm doing ... there are no final answers. My class is a liberal arts class, and Socrates is my father."

Patrick Alston's style of teaching keeps students interested.

Baldness is the lowest level of Hell

A Marketsquare Hero

by Dennis Robaugh

At one time it was very painful for me to talk about this. But I've come to grips with my loss and writing about it is almost a therapy for me.

And many people think I need therapy. I'm losing my hair.

It is a gradual loss. I don't exactly look like Telly Savalas. All the same, my baldness was rather disconcerting.

It was first brought to my attention by my eighth-grade English teacher. In her sweet voice she said, "Did you notice you have a receding hairline?"

That began my descent into the hell all hairless men experience at some point in their lives.

After eighth grade, life was not so bad. No one remembered that my hairline was migrating. Even I almost forgot about it. But the evil beast of baldness raised its shiny head and began devouring the hairs on my head in my senior year.

And it was one hungry beast.

Heavy schoolwork, no sleep, full-time job and too much drinking took a terrible toll on my body. There was just too much stress. My body reacted in a very unpleasant way.

It gave me the finger and said, "See if you can deal with this!"

The hair on the back of my head began to disappear. Slowly at first, then more and more. Finally, I had a nice little landing pad on the back of my head for small helicopters and alien spacecrafts.

I had reached the critical stage of baldness.

This is the stage where I became very sensitive about my lack of hair.

Some people seemed to think I looked like a monk. Others thought "cue-ball head" was hilariously funny. Numerous subhumans asked me if I waxed the back of my head.

I was not the happy hairless one, let me tell you.

At this stage of baldness, the bald man always adopts the following saying as his basic philosophy. "God created only so many perfect heads; the rest he covered with hair."

It may be weak but it is the only philosophical tonic that we have.

Men eventually reach a point where they secretly search for the impossible cure for baldness. Some people seem to think baldness is a disease like leprosy, but the mature bald man knows better.

I experimented with many chemical substances, even some for baldness. I ordered Bald-Away, which smelled like dog food. I sent away for Turf-Gro but it ate through the bottle in the mail and burned the mailman's leg.

I bought Mr. Leary's Hair Restoring Tonic off the black market. It didn't seem to grow any hair on my head but I did see purple trees sprout out of the ground and flying, plaid chevys driven by David Letterman.

I bought a case of it.

None of the lotions, tonics or creams proved fruitful. I gradually began to accept the fact that I was losing my hair and there was nothing I could do about it. Actually, it isn't so bad.

Eventually most men lose some of their hair. It is part of maturing. Men who do not lose some hair must be from the shallow end of the gene pool. Either that or there is no brain activity to cause any sensations in the scalp.

You may have noticed that most of the more brilliant professors on campus have hair loss to some degree. Most try to camouflage this by growing beards. I tried this. It doesn't work but it does increase the net amount of hair on your entire head. I guess that is a plus.

Probably the biggest plus is that girls think you are very mature. At least the intelligent ones. And if they don't, piss on them. They aren't worth it.

So fellow baldies, regale in your baldness. Fly high like the mighty bald eagle. And remember, "God created only so many perfect heads ..."

WHAT IS CHOLESTEROL?

Cholesterol is a fatty substance found in animal tissue. Primary sources of cholesterol in the American diet are fatty meats, egg yolks, and whole milk dairy products. Cholesterol is essential for certain body processes, but the amount the body manufactures is sufficient for these needs. High levels of cholesterol in the bloodstream are associated with a higher risk of heart disease and stroke. This risk can be reduced by adopting an eating pattern moderate in cholesterol-containing foods and saturated (animal) fats, which can increase the cholesterol level in the blood. Contact your local American Heart Association for more information.

Dry beer all 'dried' up

by Christian Thompson

The national and local demand for new Michelob Dry beer is so great Anheuser-Busch may have to "add water" to make up for shortages.

"People responded so favorably to this new product, they quite literally drank us dry," said Kent Brodbeck, president of

Friday/Lisa Pargeon

Beer drinkers can't always spot Michelob's new and highly-coveted brew.

BEERCO in Fostoria. "Anheuser-Busch hasn't been able to keep up with the demand for the beer partly because it takes longer to brew a dry beer."

Mary McCue, spokeswoman for Anheuser-Busch, said the shortages are decreasing and the company hopes to end the national shortages as soon as possible.

"The shortage problem shouldn't continue for much longer. Once it (Michelob Dry) went into national distribution, production increased. Right now the shortages are decreasing," McCue said.

Brodbeck said the situation should ease up locally in approximately two weeks so they can resupply local establishments whose quantity has diminished due to popular demand.

Vic Pirooz, owner of Soft Rock Cafe, said he understands BEERCO's supply shortages because of local demand and Anheuser-Busch's production problems.

"We have ran out a couple of times — it's been selling real well," Pirooz said. "I think its popularity is due to people's curiosity about dry beer, plus it tastes good."

Brodbeck said people have been very patient in waiting for new supplies to arrive.

Kinison show tonight

by Brenda Young

Nearly five years ago Sam Kinison began the meteoric rise of a comedy career with what he calls "the six minutes that changed my life." Those six minutes were on the 1985 HBO special, "Rodney Dangerfield presents the Young Comedians." Since then Kinison has been almost everywhere.

Kinison has involved himself in movies and music as well as keeping up with the stand-up scene on more than 250 concert appearances a year. In October 1988 he released his second comedy album, "Have You Seen Me Lately," which along with such monologues on Jim Bakker, Jesus Christ and "parties with the dead" is the already well-known "Wild Thing" remake. Kinison described the video version of the song as "everything I always wanted to be in high school."

Controversy, which Kinison thrives on, has, according to sources at Warner Brothers Records, won him fans from heavy metal rockers the likes of Poison, Whitesnake and Aerosmith to major comedy critics. He'll be looking for a few more fans tonight at John F. Savage Hall — and the razors will be sharp.

Men not as bad as media portrayal

Male bashing fashionable topic

Tongue in Cheek

by Christopher J. Dawson

"Men are jerks!" is a comment from females heard frequently around campus. Actually, the comment doesn't include the word "jerk", but another word that can't be printed in a family-style newspaper like this one.

Television shows such as "Donahue," "Oprah Winfrey," "Geraldo," and "Sally Jesse Raphael" more often than not feature men-bashing topics, and focus on problems caused by men. The only exception to all of these shows is "Morton Downey, Jr." who is definitely pro-male. But the question remains, why us?

I mean, I may be a tad biased (being a male), but I don't think we're really that bad. Okay, we're not perfect. But then again, neither are all you females. So there. As I always like to say, "we may not be perfect, but there isn't much of an alternative, so you're stuck with us."

But let us focus on the problem. Apparently, it is us men. I am trying to see what is wrong with us, but I really can't. C'mon, we're men. We are pretty simple to understand, and usually we're quite predictable. There are a few simple common points to remember, such as the fact that we have occasional memory lapses. This is evident when we promise to take the Love Interest out to dinner for her birthday, but forget and instead go to the bars with the guys.

This brings on another point — that of the male bonding group. The Guys. Simply put, the human male is a social creature. He cannot stand to be alone, and so therefore seeks out a group of buddies that he can relate to. The relationship that the male forms with his buddies is very intense, but yet extremely casual. For example, while tension reigns amongst a group of girls, guys are much more casual about things. We can and do insult each other without causing any offense. Things are mellow with us. Go walking through a girls' floor in a dormitory and you'll think you're in a war zone. I mean, the tension is so thick that you CAN'T cut it with a knife. Girls get offended so easily. Guys rarely get offended. A guys' floor is an excellent example of relaxed casualness.

When girls become the guys' Love Interest, they sometimes have difficulty putting up with The Guys. What girls don't understand is how difficult it is for The Guys. To us, we see our buddy's life completely occupied by an outsider. Usually, he's enjoying it too. In a way, it's like a major loss. It hurts, sometimes. If there are problems between the guy and the Love Interest, The Guys are the first to hear about it, and provide support, usually with that time-worn quote "Women—you can't live with 'em, you can't live with 'em!" (Fooled you, didn't I?).

This brings us to another, probably sexist, point: We Males Do Not Understand Women At All. Besides the obvious, physical stuff that separates the sexes (and probably causes most of the appeal), we cannot fathom females and their motives for doing things. Why do they get emotional over things that we don't? Why don't they get emotional over things that we do? These are questions that are not only unanswerable, but have been plaguing mankind since the dawn of time.

Females sometimes think that we males are so simple that we are very complex. We're not. A lot of the male-act is show. An example is that most females think that all males want a blond, blue-eyed, skinny girl with large breasts and long legs. Well, we do — as much as all women want the guy in the Soloflex commercials. Granted, a lot of males regard sex as a form of physical gratification, but then so do some females. No, not all males are out to pick up women just to get into their pants. Girls often complain about that. Of course, when you ask the complaining girl where they encountered these men, they almost always reply "in a bar." Call me crazy, but one of the effects of alcohol is the lowering of inhibitions combined with the rising of the libido. Chances are that quality members of the opposite sex won't be found in a bar.

Attempting to focus all of these points and differences is impossible. Men and women will never understand each other. Women think that we're insensitive, but they never see the hurt they can cause to a guy. The woman who thinks a man's goal in life is to use, abuse, and throw on the dirtpile as many women as possible has never seen a man hurting because something he has said or done has offended his Love Interest and he doesn't know what. When women say "men are (censored)!" it's because they won't give us a chance. They have one or two bad experiences and they automatically clumps all men into the category of jerk. Give us a chance. We're not so bad, once you really get to know us.

Single, Unfurled Petal

It wasn't until her funeral that I found out my Dad's mother wrote poetry.
Not like mine, of course. I guess she used a Norwegian/English blend.
It's not as if I would have wanted her to show me one of her poems, but I wonder now, as I look at a bud on the mum plant I got from beside her casket
how she would have seen it.
Would she have felt that the single,
unfurled petal is testing the climate of life for the others? A young virgin ready. Or would she have reached out to pluck the petal off, admonishing it for being so foolishly alone?

Consider the Facts

If you use two aluminum cans per day, but don't recycle, you waste more energy than each of a billion human beings in poorer lands use daily.
